

A hedgehog is a small, insect eating, mammal characterized by its spiny back and by its habit of rolling itself into a ball when attacked, like a porcupine. Native to Europe, Asia and Africa. It is able to roll itself into a ball so as to present the spines outwardly in every direction.

Hedgehog is a compound word made out of the words hedge and hog.