

INTERNS WANTED!

Come Join the Save the Elephants team, in the fight to save the elephants.

Who can apply:

Our interns are over 18 years of age and are selected by their academic qualifications as listed on their CV's and cover letters explaining why they want to work for STE and, in particular, what skills they can offer our organization. We normally expect our interns to be studying a degree at a reputable university in the fields of zoology, biological sciences, environmental sciences or geography and to be intent on pursuing a career in this field. We are also interested in accepting postgraduates and career-break interns who are trying to get more experience in the field of conservation biology and ecology or who may be interested in doing PhD research.

The work available is conservation related, and not tactile or anatomical, thus we do not accept veterinary students. Occasionally, we do accept interns in our Nairobi Head Office who can help us with fundraising, marketing, website and office based projects such as managing our African Elephant Library. Interns have come to us from all over
